Please obey all traffic laws when driving in the community, including stopping at all 3-way stop sign areas. Another reminder this month: vehicles cannot be parked on lawns or vacant lots at anytime during the day or evening. Vehicles continue to be towed on a regular basis for this parking violation. ACM Towing & Recovery patrols the community to help enforce all the parking rules and regulations of the community.

Get Vaccinated for Shingles

People age 60 and older should receive a new vaccine to prevent shingles, or herpes zoster, which often can lead to severe pain, says an advisory committee of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Made by Merck, Zostavax is the only vaccine on the market. It can be used for those who have had shingles before. The most common reported side effects were mild, such as reactions at the injection site and headache.

Devotional & Church News

By Rev. Frank J. Miller, Sr.

If you think our country is headed in the wrong direction you would be absolutely correct. The wrong direction is always the course that leads you away from God. Our answers are not found in science, education or laws. None of these can free us from the binding grip sin has on our lives. The real problems we have are not legal, individual, or national. The real problem is spiritual! The very root of all problems is spiritual!

Many will deny this reality, labeling it as a strictly religious point of view, one among many, that has no bearing in the real world. The spiritual world is very real and its existence is only denied by real fools. So let's look at virtues that are societal in nature and help form the bedrock of any worthwhile culture, language, or people. While there are many desirable norms for a successfully functioning society I will look at just two of them: honor and respect, both of which begin in the home.

The Bible tells us to "Honor your father and your mother that your days may be long in the land that the Lord your God is giving you." (Exodus 20:12) Failure to honor your parents, to become intractably rebellious children, under Mosaic Law, was punishable by death. (Deuteronomy 21:18-21) While that may seem harsh to us today it shows how much importance God placed on family life. The Bible is replete with calls to honor, a concept almost completely lost on today's generation. Paul writes in Romans 12:10, "Honor one another above yourselves." That doesn't sit well with the "me first" generation. In his first epistle the Apostle Peter tells us to, "fear God and honor the king." (1 Peter 2:17) And who was the king? Emperor Nero, a brutal dictator if there ever was one. Above all you are to "honor God with your body." (1 Corinthians 6:20) Your body is, after all, the temple of the living God.

Hand in hand with honor is the virtue we call respect. It is almost impossible to separate these two. We sin when we disrespect our parents today just as much as it was a sin to show disrespect thousands of years ago. That principle has never wavered or gone out of style. Disrespect leads to disobedience. In the first chapter of Romans Paul lists a litany of sins condemned by God. Among those offenses to be judged is "disobedience to parents." (vv28-32) If children are not taught how to show respect they most assuredly will develop an attitude of disrespect. We see it displayed in disrespect for teachers, coaches, police officers, elected political leaders, the elderly, clergy, and anyone in a position of leadership or authority; disrespect for our county, our flag, our national anthem.

We see disrespect on a global scale. The US women's soccer team recently won the world championship. Instead of celebrating the country that gave birth to these gifted athletes, the leader, in an ill-worded denigration of her country, used this platform to condemn the US and its President. (That seems to be the popular thing to do, even if it is despicable.) Try doing that in a socialist or communist country and see how long your freedom to speak out lasts. Government was created by God just as the church was. When you dishonor and disrespect your government and your government's leaders you dishonor and disrespect God Himself. There will be a hefty penalty to pay for such outlandish and sinful behavior. I pray that we can return to honor and respect before it is too late.

In a short while we will once again take up some of our programs that remain dormant during the summer months. The days, months and seasons seem to pass by at a quickening pace. Nevertheless, we remain faithful to preaching the word of God each Sunday morning without apology because we do honor and respect God's Word and will not retreat from it nor treat it lightly. Join us at 10:30AM for worship and fellowship. In the meantime I urge you to show honor and respect to whom it is due; and to teach the younger generation the importance and true value of such qualities. God bless you and lift you up on the last day to be with him forever.

Optimizing Digestion

Ah, the joys of adulthood. If you're still reading and wondering why humans suddenly seem to "need" supplements to aid the body in what should be an automatic process, welcome to 2019. Buzzwords like probiotics, prebiotics, fiber, and digestive enzymes have many people shelling out big bucks for a quick fix in pill form. Before we delve into the why, let's brush up on what these terms mean. Probiotics: Our bodies are full of bacteria, good and bad. Probiotics are live bacteria that are beneficial, especially in aiding digestive processes. They are naturally present in fermented foods like yogurt, sauerkraut, kimchi, kombucha, and miso.

Prebiotics are naturally high-fiber foods that help feed your good bacteria to aid digestion and support the immune system (beans, nuts, seeds, garlic, onion, asparagus, bananas, dandelion, oats, apples).

Fiber: Found naturally in root vegetables, greens, seeds, berries and nuts, fiber helps normalize bowel movements by adding bulk to the stool to pull toxins from the body and improve the efficiency of the colon.

Digestive Enzymes: Enzymes aid natural processes in the body. Our bodies produce them and we also obtain them from raw foods. As we age, our ability to produce enzymes diminishes. Coupled with the fact that enzymes in food are destroyed by heat/processing, this can lead to an enzyme deficiency. The primary digestive enzymes are proteases (bromelain/pineapple, papain/papaya) which aid with protein breakdown, amylase (naturally produced by the pancreas and also present in many raw fruits, vegetables, beans and nuts) helps the body process carbohydrates, lipase (avocado, nuts, lentils, oats) assists with fat digestion, and, of course, lactase helps the body process the natural sugar in dairy.

Why should I care? If you have heartburn, irregular bowel movements, IBS, nutritional deficiencies, or take an antibiotic, then adjusting your diet to include more digestion-friendly foods may improve your overall health. Modern diets are higher in processed food (devoid of most of the ingredients discussed above) than at any time in our human history. Throw in the additives, stabilizers, colorings, and preservatives that our bodies must simultaneously process, and it's no wonder that we're all bloated, gassy train wrecks. Supplements in pill and powder form promise to fix all that ails you, but considering that supplements are equally highly processed, and not regulated by the FDA, their purity and efficiency is highly questionable. A pill didn't cause the problem, it's not likely to fix it. We must take the time to prioritize whole food sources over quick, convenient ones. That means grilled proteins instead of deli or fried meats; oats, sweet potato or squash instead of bread or pasta; avocado or olive oil instead of cheese and sauce/dressing and a snack of nuts, seeds and dried fruit instead of chips, cookies or crackers. Maybe even a nice Greek yogurt with fresh berries and raw honey drizzle for dessert. Spend less in the grocery store aisles, and more in the store perimeter to take back control of your gut.

How To Protect Your Home From Fire Risks

1. Keep It Lean

Prune shrubs and cut back tree branches, especially within 15 feet of your chimney. Remove flammable plants: palmetto, wax myrtle, youpon holly, red cedar and young pine. Create at least a 30 foot "defensible space" around your home, landscaped with less flammable plants separated by walkways and grassy areas.

2. Keep It Clean

Remove all dead plant material from around your home, including dead leaves and grass. Keep your gutters, eaves and roof clear of leaves, branches and other debris. Mulch and landscaping should be kept well-watered to prevent them from becoming fire fuel.

3. Keep It Green

Plant fire-resistant vegetation: dogwood, viburnum, redbud, sycamore, magnolia, beauty berry, oaks, red maple, wild azalea, sweetgum, coontie, winged elm, black cherry, persimmon, ferns, sugarberry, wild plum, Florida soapberry, Fringetree, wild olive, blue beech, hophornbeam and sparkleberry. Use rocks that look like mulch instead of wood chips.

Other Tips

- Use fire-resistant construction materials inside and around your home.
- Install fire-resistant fences, porches and decks around your home and property.

- Identify your home and neighborhood with clearly marked street names and numbers.
- Have tools ready: shovel, rake, ax, handsaw or chain saw and a 2-gallon bucket.
- Meet with your family to create a disaster plan and escape route.

Good Health Tips For The Summer Months

Keeping your body hydrated is an important part of good health. Caffeinated beverages do contribute to fluid intake. The Institute of Medicine's Food and Nutrition board says there is little evidence that caffeinated beverages flush vital water from the body. But they are often full of sugar and phosphates, which can weaken bones and teeth.

The real threat to hydration is salt. The average man takes in two to three times the amount of salt the body needs and women get twice as much.

The second problem is a lack of potassium, an essential nutrient found in spinach, potatoes, cantaloupe, and bananas, almonds and mushrooms. Adults need at least 4.7 grams of potassium daily, but the average man gets around 3.3 grams. Women get about 2.4 grams.

Doctors writing in Health-News say that too much salt and too little potassium increases the risk of high blood pressure. Balancing these two nutrients is important. Before exercising or when outdoors in hot weather, drink extra water to make up for what you lose through sweating. By limiting salt, getting enough potassium, and drinking more on hot days, you can keep your body properly hydrated.

Combat Crime

Don't become a victim of TV! The fear of crime is up everywhere, with home invasions holding a spot near the top of the list. Television fans the flames of fear more effectively than any other media. Listeners fail to remember that the TV exists mainly to garner profits through visual advertising. The more sensational they play it, the more potential for customers to tune in.

We cannot over emphasize the importance of thinking ahead; try to out think the bad guys! The most effective way to combat crime is the cooperative effort of good neighbors, and the most secure households are the ones that follow simple security tips such as these:

1. Close your drapes so a burglar cannot see inside your home.
2. Leave a radio on while you are away to create background sound in your empty house.
3. Always lock your doors and windows.
4. Always have a light on in more than one room when you are away.
5. Never display your marital status or first/middle name on templates and mailboxes.
6. If you arrive home and find someone has been in your home, do not enter. Dial 9-1-1.

7. Keep shrubs trimmed below window height and away from doors.
8. Do not leave ladders around the exterior of your home.
9. Never hide a key outside your home.

Alertness is the key to personal safety and the safety of your neighborhood!

Remember When?

Remember when you were a child and you would play outside for hours and be home in time for supper? Remember simply saying good-bye to your mom and a promise to be home at a certain time? How about those after dark hide-and -seek games where the "territory" for the game was the entire neighborhood? In addition, the daily treks to the corner store for candy. It's sad to think our children cannot enjoy the same freedoms; the world has changed. On the other hand, has it? School is out for summer break. Do you know the neighbor children or young adults on your block? Do you know their first and last names? How about their telephone numbers?

The world has changed but a neighborhood should be just that, neighborly. I am not saying we have to know everything about all of our neighbors, but it is nice if we can stop and speak to our neighbors and maybe chat. Involve yourself in our community; help our neighborhood to be a better one.
